🚢 Understanding the 3-1-1 Rule

The 3-1-1 rule originally comes from airline security regulations, particularly in the United States. It refers to how passengers must carry liquids in their carry-on bags:

- 3 = Containers must be 3.4 ounces (100 ml) or less
- 1 = All containers must fit into 1 quart-sized clear plastic bag
- 1 = Each passenger is allowed 1 bag only

While this rule is strictly enforced at airports, it does not fully apply to Princess Cruises in the same way. However, it still plays an important role if your Princess Cruises involves air travel before boarding.

If you're unsure about your specific Princess Cruises policy, call 📞 +1-866-254-7549(US/CANADA) or 📞 +44 (289) 708-0062 (UK) for clarification.

✈️ Does the 3-1-1 Rule Apply to Princess Cruises

✔️ Yes—If You're Flying to Your Princess Cruises Port

If your Princess Cruises vacation starts with a flight, you must follow the 3-1-1 rule during your flight. This means packing your liquids correctly in your carry-on luggage.

For example:

- Shampoo, lotion, and perfume must be under 3.4 oz
- All liquids must fit into one clear bag

After you arrive at your Princess Cruises port, these airline restrictions no longer apply in the same way.

✔️ No—Once You Board the Princess Cruises Ship

Celebrity Cruises lines generally have different, more relaxed rules compared to airlines.

- You can pack larger liquid containers in your checked luggage
- Toiletries like shampoo, sunscreen, and body wash are usually allowed
- Some restrictions apply to alcohol and certain beverages

🧳 What Liquids Can You Bring on a Princess Cruises?

Here's a breakdown of common items and how they're treated:

✔️ Allowed Items

🍷 Alcohol Rules vs. 3-1-1 Rule

One area where Princess Cruises lines are strict is alcohol.

- Most Princess Cruises lines allow limited wine or champagne
- Hard liquor is often restricted
- Extra alcohol may be confiscated at boarding

This has nothing to do with the 3-1-1 rule, but it's important to know.

🧠 Why the 3-1-1 Rule Still Matters for Princess Cruises Travelers

Even though Princess Cruises don't enforce it onboard, the rule still matters because:

1. Most travelers fly to their Princess Cruises port
2. Airport security checks happen before your Princess Cruises begins
3. Violating the rule can delay your trip

To avoid stress, always follow the 3-1-1 rule during flights and then repack if needed once onboard.
